PRESENT OF A PAIR OF ELK HORNS.-At St. Louis, a few days ago, a pair of magnificent Elk horns, gilded and embroidered in exceedingly handsome style, were presented to Capu Sol. Catterlin, of the steamboat Southerner, by Capt. McGee, on the part of the steamboat men and citizens of St. Louis. They are about five feet high, with four or five large branches from each horn, on the top of which are round, gilded balls, with streamers of red and white silk flying from each. In the centre is a hang or flying board, on which is placed the words " Hard to Beat."

So extraordinary a fact of we invite the attention of all close buyers to our Large buyers to and Attractive Stock, but with the distinct unimprovement cannot fail to make a deep impression derstanding that we sell goods only for cash, or good notes, on steamboat men and on the public. They will be payable in all cases at Bank. apt to ask themselves, if accidents can be so greatly decreased, why may they not be avoided altogether?

Let us hope, for the glory of science, for the praise of steamboat men, and for the sake of humanity, that the ensuing year shall be wholly devoid of accordance assumed as the sake of humanity, and the sake of humanity are sold by cash houses in the Northern cities. In order to test this feature of our bankness, we only ask a colored catter of our bankness, we only ask a colored to test this feature of our bankness, we only ask a color to test this feature of our bankness.

that steamboat men should control. ent, in respect to accidents to human life is so far vite attention to our steck and plans for business, believing worable, the same is not the case in respect to the that we offer inducements accound to me House in this count loss of boats. Look at the facts :

Steamboats sunk and raised last year, . . 19 work and lost. . Steamboats sunk and raised this year, . . 24

This result very illy comports with the favorable comparisons presented above of the improved salety of human life, on the western waters. We have . Highest price paid in each for Tallow, Grease, and pot the means of knowing accountely, but we are and led to believe that the total loss of property by the spagging and sinking of boats on the western rivers during the past twelve months, is considerably over $2,000,000. It is evidently much beyond what it was the year before. It seems to us that these facts should arrest the attention of Congress. If they can legislate so beneficially for the prevention of the loss of human life, why not devote some care and thought to the next important duty-the protection of western commerce. The sale of the U.S. enag boats, and wm. M. LAWTON, the abandonment of the improvement of western R. W. BACOT, rivers by the Government, have doubtless contribu- sugi-tri as ted to the increased loss of property, that is made apparent. But if it be the settled policy of Goverument to abandon the old mode of clearing snags from the western rivers, it is hardly consistent with national wisdom or justice to suppose that no other mode will be adopted.

If not inappropriate, we will suggest to you that private enterprise, under a contract with Goverament, might accomplish, at far less cost than Government could, the needful improvement of western rivers. A company that should propose (and we know competent companies that will,) to keep the Mississippi river, from the mouth of the Missouri river to New Orleans, free of all snags, from year's end to year's end, at a given price per year to be paid by Government, binding themselves to bring about an annual per cent, of diminution of number of boats enagged, and paying heavy forfeitures for each boat snagged after a given time after the beginning of their operations, it seems to us, should demand the favorable consideration of Congress. The plan proposed would combine simplicity, economy and efficiency, and would result in the annual specimen of Indian Summer, warm and Sum- saving of millions of wealth to the country. Congress will certainly not permit the serious retrogade movement in the safety of the inland commerce of the nation to continue; and with a confident hope of some salutary change of legislation on the subject, we make these suggestions to you, trusting The river was receding yesterday with about that they may also reach western members of Congress, who will be able and willing to urge the policy of immediate reform."
